Foreword

By-Laws

Why have By-Laws for an Association? The simple answer is to regulate what we do, in what we all have agreed to do by way of voting as members of the Association. That's democracy in action, by going with the majority even if sometimes you disagree with a decision being made.

In an Incorporation Association such as ours the Constitution are the rules that effect the governance of an Association and are regulated by the state government through Consumer Affairs. Each Constitution can be tailored to, and by each Association provided the Association meet all the requirements laid down by the state government through law (Act). The Constitution will mainly effect the Committee and what they do, not to say only the Committee, but to a lesser degree the members as well. Whereas the By-Laws of an Association are made by the members of the Association and regulated by the Committee of the Association.

We are all bound by the rules of the Association upon membership (Constitution rule 7.1), these rules are our Constitution and By-Laws. It's better and easier to have an understanding and to work within the rules of the Association than to try and work around or outside the rules of the Association. So please read these rules carefully as ignorance of these rules (By-Laws) do not constitute grounds for appeal. Breaches of these rules (By-Laws) will incur penalties.

Committee

The first and foremost role of the Committee and especially the President of the Association is to serve the Association and not dictate to the Association, always upholding the rules of the Association (Constitution, these By-Laws & any Motions) at all times, everything else comes a distant second including your own personal interest and ideas!

For the best possible outcomes for the Association the Committee are to work together as a team. Communication is the key, all Committee members need to be able to contact one another when needed. Consistency of the Committee in their roles that each one does is paramount to the management of the Association. All the Committee members need to know their roles and be able to execute them with efficiency and diligence. When all the Committee members know their roles properly then that is when the Association functions at its best and the Association goes forward with things getting done.

The President of the Association needs to be able to lead the Association at all meetings and in the day to day running of the Association. After role 1.1.3 is understood and adhered to the President should ensure that all the Committee members know their role and should ensure that they are doing it and not falling behind in their duties and responsibilities. The President should have his finger on the pulse not trying to do their roles either, delegation for him is important and remember you have a Vice President too. The President should know and keep in touch with his Committee members on where they are in their duties that they are to preform and offer them the support that they may need from time to time.

The Committee should always be prepared to listen to all its members and any concerns that they may have and to address their concerns, and at the very least address them by bringing those concerns to a Committee Meeting.
